He is about 4.5 inches in length and brownish in color with a thin head. His spine had bumps all the way down to his tail, which were different to any other lizard or gecko that I had seen before, and he had strange looking feet with spread out toes. They were not webbed feet and I did not see any claws or nails on them. I never saw him eat or drink anything. He just stayed on the leaf motionless enjoying a beautiful, sunny afternoon in my back yard.
